The shooting occurred on a Sunday on a rural road near McNab. He was brought to trial January 21, 1963 and a hung jury resulted. Judge Lyle Brown declared a mistrial and dismissed the jury. The jury included E. A. Pendergraft, Bill Tolleson, Denvil Ross, Charles Butler, C. P. Jones, Herbert Chambliss, Lee Parris, Carter Russell, Henry Zumwalt, Doc Coffee, W. Y. Jackson and Paul McClellan.

Summerlike Weather Takes Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Summerlike weather which reigned in Arkansas over the weekend is expected to continue in the state through Tuesday with somewhat cooler temperatures expected later in the week.

High pressure over the southeastern states will continue to bring warm southerly breezes to Arkansas, though there is a chance of scattered shower activity Wednesday with the approach of a frontal system from the west, the Weather Bureau said.

During the coming week, temperatures should average 10 to 15 degrees above normal with minor changes until cooler air moves in later in the week.

Normal highs range from the low 60s in the north to the low 70s in the south. Normal lows range from the low 40s in the north to the low 50s in the south. Overnight low temperatures reported around the state last night ranged from 52 at Texarkana and 54 at Fayetteville to 63 at Harrison and 60 at Walnut Ridge and in the Memphis-West Memphis area.

The Reds killed 28 Civil Guardsmen and wounded 22. Four were missing. The Communists got away with only one known dead, although others were reported killed in an air strike after the ambush.

Presses Roll Again in New York

By ANDREW MEISELS

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City's 114-day newspaper strike has ended with the roar of high-speed presses and the busy sounds of 19,000 newspaper employees back at work.

A series of labor disputes had shut down the papers for nearly four months and cost the city's economy an estimated $250 million.

News-hungry inhabitants of this news-making city bought up the papers almost as fast as the presses could print them. Normally, 5½ million copies are printed daily, but the sale of today's editions was more than brisk.

"I never sold papers so fast in my life," said a Bronx news dealer. "I was passing them out like a robot."

Two morning papers—the Times and Herald Tribune—returned to the stands Sunday night at double their prestrike price. The papers said greatly increased costs forced a rise from 5 to 10 cents, the first increase since 1946.

The other morning papers—the tabloid News and the Mirror—remained at a nickel. The afternoon papers retained their preshutdown prices—10 cents for the Manhattan papers and 5 cents for the Long Island Press and the Long Island Star-Journal. The Press, which published its Long Island edition, throughout the strike, raised its Sunday price from 15 to 20 cents.

The newspaper shutdown—longest and costliest in this city's history—began Dec. 8 with a strike of printers. It ended Sunday when 317 photoengravers—members of the last of three unions that joined the strike—voted to accept a new contract with the Publishers Association of New York City.

Only four of the city's nine major papers actually were struck—the Times, News, World-Telegram & Sun and Journal-American. The Post, Herald Tribune, Mirror, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal suspended publication voluntarily.

On March 4, the Post left the ranks of the publishers and resumed publication. For the past 27 days, it has printed and sold 750,000 copies a day, more than double its normal circulation. The first paper on the streets was the Mirror—second largest in the country with a daily circulation of nearly 900,000. The Mirror, after heralding the good news with a fireworks display, announced on its front page: "New York's alive again."

Shortly thereafter, the Daily News, whose daily circulation of more than 2 million is the largest in the country, put in its first appearance of 1963 with a front-page banner that said: "We have NEWS for you."

The first editions were snapped up in minutes. "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," proclaimed a six-column headline on the front page of the Herald Tribune. An editorial expressed thanks to Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who mediated the strike and came up with the formula which eventually won acceptance of all the unions involved.

The Times, News and Mirror all commented editorially that the strike proved the need for better machinery in the field of labor-management relations.

"No one wins a strike of this dimension," said the Times, "not labor, not management, and certainly not the public. It must not occur again."

Chung Hee Park is reported still determined to hold on to power despite three days of talks with his leading civilian opponents, who urged him to change his mind. Former President Yun Posun and ex-Premier Huh Chung also refused to change their position that military rule must end and a civil administration be installed by free elections.

$2 Trillion Economy by Year 2000

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has ample resources to support a $2-trillion economy by the year 2000 and apparently can continue to grow far into the 21st century.

This was the conclusion of a bulky and authoritative report published today by Resources for the Future, Inc., after a five-year study.

The depletion of resources, gloomily foretold by many after the great chewing-up of materials in World War II, has been pushed far ahead by science, discovery and advancing technology, the privately supported research organization said.

It painted these highlights in its picture of the year 2000:

—Land looms as the greatest shortage—space to accommodate the homes, businesses, travel and recreation of an end-of-the-century population of around 331 million. There are now 188 million Americans.

—Croppland will be ample to produce food—and troublesome farm surpluses—far into the future.

—About 244 million autos—possibly three for every two adults—will be plying the streets and highways.

—Some of the vehicles may be auto-planes, safely operable in the air as on turnpikes. Some may be powered by batteries, recharged by household current; others may run on chemical fuel cells.

—Whatever the motor fuel, there will be enough to run the cars at no great increase in cost.

—Americans will be eating more meat, especially beef, and less wheat. They will grow taller while consuming fewer calories, and will wear fewer and lighter clothes—including, perhaps, some disposable garments made of paper.

—The atom will provide more energy than coal, but coal use will still be growing.

—The two-house family will be common. More and more Americans will have a city home and a country home, or a winter house and a summer cottage.

—Spendable income of the middle family, after taxes are paid, will be $11,000 a year, instead of today's $5,000.

Water will be a shortage problem for the West and a quality problem for the East, the researchers found. More dams and reservoirs on eastern rivers will be needed to ensure enough dependable flow to purify the sewage and industrial waste or flush it into the sea.

Worker Hurt in Fall at Egg Depot

Rummy Clayton, about 22, at Atlanta, Texas, a worker at the De-light Egg Farm Depot now under construction, was painfully injured this morning when he fell from a ladder.

He sustained a badly fractured arm, lacerations and a severe cut over his eye. Although painful his condition is not considered critical. He was taken to a local hospital by a Herndon-Cornelius ambulance.

U.S. Plans to Crack Down on Exile Attacks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A fresh report from Cuba that guerrilla forces are weak and lack arms left a bleak outlook today for Miami's exile colony, already discouraged by the United States crackdown on commando raids.

"There is no strong underground or guerrilla movement in Cuba—despite what you hear," said Carlos Penin, former schoolmate of Fidel Castro and now coordinator of the People's Revolutionary Movement.

His report came on the heels of a weekend crackdown on Miami's anti-Castro groups. Some 10 exile leaders were told they could not leave Dade County, which includes most of metropolitan Miami.

It also was reported that the Coast Guard and the Immigration Service were increasing their efforts to prevent forays against Cuba such as two recent attacks against Soviet ships.

In Washington, the State and Justice departments announced jointly Saturday that the United States would "take every step necessary" to make certain American soil is not used as a base for Cuban refugee raids on Cuba and on Soviet shipping.

Officials indicated that the main legal weapon they would use against hit-and-run raiders would be the American neutrality law, which provides penalties up to three years imprisonment and $3,000 fine for taking part in "a military or naval expedition departing from the United States" to attack a nation with which the United States is not at war.

One Cuban leader, who asked that his name not be used, said: "This is the last straw. No invasion. No government in exile. No jobs and now, no more attacks on Castro."

A spokesman for the Revolutionary Study Directorate, Jose Antonio Lanusa, said, "If these restrictive orders are going to completely snuff out outside action against Castro, internal rebellion will become almost impossible in Cuba."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro said over the weekend it will take his armed forces "a few more weeks" to wipe out rebels operating on Cuban territory.

He told a crowd at Matanzas his troops had liquidated 60 per cent of the rebel forces in the past 30 days. He did not say how large these bands were.

Penin, who just returned from a trip to Cuba said there are about seven commando organizations in Cuba—not 20 to 30 as frequently reported. The guerrillas need many things, he said, particularly money to buy food from peasants.

Bookkeeping Error Brings a Puzzle

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—A bookkeeping error had Pine Bluff Police scratching their heads over the weekend—they apparently had misplaced four Negro anti-segregation demonstrators.

A recount Sunday cleared up the situation, however, and the police announced again—this time for sure—that the last of the demonstrators had been freed on bond.

The recount revealed that 43 had been released Saturday. The figure previously given was 39.

A total of 49 Negroes were arrested last week during demonstrations at the Hotel Ines and the Saenger Theater in Pine Bluff. Six had made bond prior to Saturday. Six and 39 makes only 45 and the police couldn't figure out what had happened to the other four.

The six Hotel Pines demonstrators are to be tried Tuesday on charges of loitering and refusing to leave private premises on request. The others, all charged with creating a disturbance in a public place, will be tried Thursday.

Students Leaving

MOSCOW (AP)—Iraqi students are walking off Soviet university campuses and heading home despite pleas from Soviet authorities and their own government to stay.

To prevent an exodus, the Iraqi Embassy is severely limiting the number for whom it will buy plane tickets. So far only 50 have been approved.

Cultural attaché Mahmoud Shukri said the students are leaving because of the violent Soviet campaign against Iraq's new Communist-purging government.

British to Patrol in Caribbean

LONDON (AP)—A British navy frigate, with 30 marines aboard, slipped out of Bermuda over the weekend on a Caribbean patrol to keep a lookout against anti-Castro raids on Cuba, sources in London said Sunday.

The 2,150-ton Londonderry was sent on the mission at the request of the United States, informants said.

Final Rites Held for Davey Moore

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Davey Moore, the second boxing champion to lose his life in the ring in a year, was buried here Saturday as hundreds mourned.

Moore, who grew up here, held the world's featherweight championship for four years before he lost it to Sugar Ramos in a fight March 21 in Los Angeles. An hour after the fight was stopped, Moore collapsed in his dressing room. He died last Monday.

Doctors said Moore apparently injured his brain when he was knocked down in the 10th round and the back of his head bounced on the rope.

An estimated 1,000 friends and relatives jammed every available spot in Mount Zion Baptist Church to pay their last respects to the scrappy little fighter.

Several hundred also stood outside the jammed church to hear the service over a public address system.

Only Moore's manager, Willie Ketchum, was present to represent the boxing world. He spoke briefly in an almost inaudible voice.

The body of the 29-year-old fighter rested in a bronze casket under a huge golden boxing glove of chrysanthemums. Banks of flowers lined the walls.

Cities Can't Outlaw Pinball Machines

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court held today that a city cannot outlaw pinball machines as long as they are legal under state law.

The ruling came in a case appealed from Clay Chancery Court by the City of Piggott which enacted an ordinance outlawing such machines.

Mrs. Dena Ehlen, owner of the Paragould Music Co., attacked the ordinance in court and it was declared invalid by the chancellor. The Supreme Court affirmed the lower court decision.

The City of Piggott contended in its appeal that it had a right to declare pinball machines a public nuisance and to ban them from the city.

The Supreme Court cited numerous cases in which it has held that a city cannot enact an ordinance which conflicts with state law and it said state law clearly makes pinball machines legal by establishing a license fee on them.

The Supreme Court countered Piggott's argument that the machines should be considered a nuisance because minors are permitted to play them by saying that the city should have enacted a statute which makes it illegal for persons under 18 to use the machines.

"Declaring pinball machines to be illegal is a subject which addresses itself to the wisdom of the legislature," Justice Frank Holt wrote in the unanimous opinion. "It is not the function or within the power of this court to invade the constitutional authority of the legislature, a coordinate branch of our government."

The Supreme Court decision cleared the way for the legislature to take some kind of action on the matter, possibly at a special session if one is called later this year.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said last week he would favor legislation giving cities the right to outlaw pinball machines, indicating he would be willing to include the topic if a special session is called.

Choir Robbed While Singing in Church

The Arkansas College Choir of Batesville sang at the First Presbyterian Church here Sunday and the girl members are not likely to forget it for some time.

While they sang someone slipped into the choir room, went through their purses and took a total of $22.50 from four purses. Highly embarrassed church officials reimbursed the girls their losses.

City Police are investigating.

Tass Blasts the Exile Leaders

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass Sunday night called the United States' restriction of Cuban exile leaders to U.S. territory "a theatrical gesture."

A Tass report from New York said: "One cannot but note that such a 'measure' looks rather like a theatrical gesture than an attempt to end the bandit attacks against the Cuban people. It is still known that it is not the ringleaders but their henchmen that make these pirate attacks."

Military in Guatemala Takes Control

By JACK RUTLEDGE

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP)—Military takeover in Guatemala that sent President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes into exile appeared today to have blocked any chance of a Communist election victory in this Central American Republic.

Col. Enrique Peralta Azurdia, Ydigoras' defense minister, made clear he intends to be a strong man leader as he took over the government with powers to rule by decree.

The coup Sunday appeared to have the approval of Ydigoras, who arrived in Nicaragua by air force plane.

"What is going on in Guatemala is for her own good and for the good of the rest of Central America," said the 67-year-old deposed leader, a prime figure in the Central American anti-Castro movement.

Peralta said he did not know the whereabouts of leftist former President Juan Jose Arevalo, whose secret return from exile in Mexico apparently touched off the coup. Arevalo had planned to run for the presidency and stood a good chance of being elected.

The new chief of state told a news conference that there was little resistance for Ydigoras.

Peralta suspended the constitution, dissolved Congress, ordered all political parties disbanded and cancelled the November presidential election. He said that the new regime will not tolerate communism in any guise. He promised that Guatemala would honor its international obligations.

Peralta said that the military, with himself in charge, will run the executive and legislative branches of the government. He promised to give up the presidency after elections he said will be held at an unspecified date.

Peralta said he will form a cabinet of honest, efficient, anti-Communists from military and civilian ranks.

Guatemalans took the coup calmly and the military took precautions to keep it that way.

The U.S. State Department maintained a guarded silence on the latest Latin-American coup.

The takeover confronted Washington with another military dictatorship in this hemisphere when the United States is crusading for democracy under the banner of its Alliance for Progress. There is fear that the military will overthrow the Argentine government to block elections there in which Peronist candidates are certain to poll a large vote.

Ydigoras, a former general, was named president by Guatemala's Congress Feb. 12, 1958. His overthrow came less than two weeks after he joined President Kennedy and the chief executives of Guatemala's Central American neighbors in the Costa Rican pledge to tighten guards against Communist subversion and improve Latin America's economic lot.

Trash Pickup to Be Made in Campaign

The City Health and Sanitation Department will cooperate in the Clean-Up Campaign by having a special pick up Wednesday April 3, 10 and 17 and 24 if necessary. You may place anything on the curb but tree limbs and shrubs. This is the responsibility of the individual.

Chief Ray Yocum urges all citizens to check their property for fire hazards such as oily rags, waste paper, loose boards, etc. He also warns of keeping gasoline in glass containers. When a glass jar breaks and spreads gasoline, the whole area could spread into flame immediately. Chief Yocum reminds all persons who buy gasoline for mowers or other motors to obtain a metal can with pouring spout.

Audit Could Pave Way for Special Session

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—Craighead County Rep. Norman Wimpy, a member of the Legislative Joint Audit Committee, requested today that a complete audit of State Police Department funds be made to determine whether extreme cutbacks in services are necessary.

Wimpy, a farmer, insurance man and five-term veteran in the House, said he mailed his request today to Orvel Johnson, legislative auditor.

"I don't know whether one member of the committee can cause such an audit to be made," he said. "If not, I will have a motion ready to offer at the next meeting of the committee on April 19. I think I will have plenty of support to get the audit done."

Gov. Orval E. Faubus has announced drastic cutbacks in State Police services in what he calls an economy move to enable the department to operate within its income.

Faubus indicated a special legislative session might be called to deal with State Police financing, and he said he favored a $1 increase in the drivers' license fee to provide $800,000 a year for State Police.

Wimpy said if the audit shows a need for more money, a special session should be called immediately.

"I'm not in favor of raising drivers' license fees," he said. The State Police budget includes money for the fire marshal program, criminal investigation and other things which are not concerned directly with highway safety. I think we would be justified in taking whatever is necessary from general revenues."

Faubus has said he is opposed to taking the money from general revenues.

Wimpy said he was asking Johnson to name the department deficit at the time the cutbacks were ordered, and to say what the deficit would be at the end of the next two years if the department continued to operate as it was before the cutbacks.

He said the cutback in services is "highly demoralizing to our dedicated State Police officers."

"I've talked to troopers in various sections of the state. They're really shook up and so am I."

Porks Win First of Twin Bill
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas dropped the first game of a baseball doubleheader 10-6 to the University of Missouri at Fayetteville Saturday, but won the nightcap 6-5.

Marl Carter was the big noise for the Razorbacks, driving in a two-game total of seven runs with two homers. Carter slammed a 3-run homer in the first inning of the first game and opened the second game with a solid smash that brought in four runs.

Carter's first effort gave Arkansas a 5-run lead, but Missouri replaced starting pitcher Larry Bohannon with Keith Weber who shut the Hogs out the rest of the game. Missouri won it with a 6-run rally in the sixth inning. Mike Haynie won the second game for Arkansas when he slashed a single past the third baseman to score two men. Israel's Security Chief Quits

By ERIC GOTTGETREU

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—Israel's long-time security chief has quit, apparently in a dispute with Premier David Ben-Gurion over what to do about German rocket scientists working for the United Arab Republic.

Informed sources said Ben-Gurion objected to attempts to dictate foreign policy by the cloak and dagger boss whose name still is concealed by rigid security precautions.

The premier also reportedly opposed direct action tactics against the German scientists along the lines of the kidnapping of Adolf Eichmann from Argentina. The security chief engineered that, and it had international repercussions. Two alleged Israeli agents were arrested in Switzerland last month and accused of conspiring to kidnap a German missile scientist employed by the U.A.R.

The independent Jerusalem Post said Ben-Gurion did not agree with attacks in the Israeli press on the West German government for not preventing the employment of its nationals in U.A.R. arms plants. The premier held the security chief responsible for the press campaign, the Post said.

Figures for Paydirt in Third Grade

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Tricky Catherine O'Connor, a second grader at St. Francis School here, figures she has until the third grade to hit paydirt.

The blonde, blue-eyed 7-year-old has been trying to collect soil samples from the 50 states—but her rate of success seems to indicate that collecting dirt, a natural talent in boys, is hard work for a girl.

As part of a school science project, she wrote chambers of commerce in the largest city in each state for soil samples.

"I just need a little bit. About a tablespoon full," she wrote laboriously—writing is still a new thing with her. Her father, Dr. Gerald A. O'Connor, a physician at St. Joseph Hospital and a professor at the University of Michigan, had 50 copies of the letter made after he saw how much time the first one took.

She got an immediate response—but not much dirt. Letters in reply contained Confederate money from Charlotte, N.C., brochures on gambling in Las Vegas, and living in Minneapolis, letters of sympathy and promotional pamphlets.

Her science project was judged best in her class—despite the fact that it contained soil samples from only 13 states and an explanation for the missing 37.

Still Fighting Highway Dept.

BENTON Ark. (AP)—Marshall Stanley may take his battle with the state Highway Department back to the Arkansas Supreme Court.

Both Stanley and the Highway Department have filed notices of appeal to the high court in their Saline County land condemnation dispute.

Stanley claims his land is worth millions of dollars because a special property of the soil makes it unusually good for manufacturing well tile septic tanks and related products.

The Highway Department contends it's worth no more than $5,000.

A Saline Circuit Court last month awarded Stanley $35,000 for the 18.6 acres of land which was condemned by the Highway Department for the new Interstate Highway 40.

This was the second time the case had been tried. Another Saline jury had awarded Stanley $150,000. The Highway Department appealed and the Supreme Court remanded the case back to the lower court because of a lack of evidence.

Jockey Suspended

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Jockey Ray Padron was handed a ten-day suspension by Oaklawn Park Stewards Saturday as a result of a disqualification in the ninth race Friday.

Padron rode Happy Hiker, who finished first by a head but was moved back to third for interference in the stretch. Warm up, the runner up, was declared the winner and First Doe, who finished third, was advanced to second.

The suspension extends through April 11, grounding Padron for the rest of the Oaklawn season.

DOROTHY DIX

REFORMED PLAYBOY, NOW DOUBTING THOMAS

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: In my younger days I used to be a playboy. My wife was very beautiful and I insanely jealous. Naturally the boys were attracted. To get even I drank, chased other women and squandered money. But the only one I ever loved and still do, is my wife.

We were in our teens when married and too immature to take marriage seriously. She had three children, one right after the other and because of them, stuck it out the first years. But, some while ago, her love cooled.

Then a lot of things happened. I lost my business, home and money. Hoping to retrieve fortune and character, I moved from Canada to the U.S. West Coast to start a new life. My wife remained in Canada. I found a fine position almost immediately and wrote her to join me. She did for three months then returned to Canada and hasn't been back since.

Last December, feeling lonely as hell, I long-distanced my wife. She answered, mistook me for another man, calling him by name and in the most affectionate way. I blew my top. Yelling, "I'm through!" I banged down the phone. Well, for the next five days and nights I didn't eat, sleep or work, only drank like crazy. When I got so low there was no further to go, I joined Alcoholics Anonymous. That bunch are showing me how to really live, something I wanted to do all my life but didn't know how.

Meantime, my son told me his mother was still going with the other man and had been for the past six years. That hurt, yet I loved her more than ever and so long-distanced her again. Did she want to continue our marriage or divorce? She said she wanted to keep our marriage intact.

I've sent her the money to join me here. She has applied for a visa and will arrive this month. The other man is dying. His wife of 16 years remains loyal to him.

Now, here's my big worry. Is my wife returning to me only because the other man is dying or does she sincerely hope to make a new start with me.

As I wait for her to come, I'm torn between love and hate but deep down I know I'll never be happy without her. For a solid year I've been utterly faithful to her. Will she ever feel the same way toward me again? Am I making a mistake? —Desperate Husband

Dear Desperate: Don't be a Doubting Thomas. A negative attitude will destroy all your chances for happiness. Either take back your wife, believing in her, or put her forever out of your life and stop torturing yourself. Trust her and she will trust you. After all, this isn't a one-way street. She has a lot of forgiving to do too for, by your own admission, you weren't exactly a saint. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for "A Happy Marriage."

Dear Helen: Ours is a tragic situation. I'm the invalid wife of a man whom I adore. We've been married 23 years and have six sons, the eldest of whom is 22. Shortly after the youngest was born in 1935, I fell ill with a lingering illness for which there is no cure.

My sister has lived with us most of our married life but only last year I learned that she and my husband were having an affair. She denied it when confronted with the facts but he says it's so. After a violent scene I ordered her out of the house. Ever since he has been nervous and cross to the point of cruelty. Now my husband says if I don't take her back he will disappear. I can't live without him. Our doctor told him that worry could kill him. Sometimes I wonder if that isn't what he wants.

My sister has been married but is separated from her husband. He is 57, she 41. I am 43 and my husband 44. Are we all at a dangerous age? What should I do? —Broken-Hearted

Dear Broken: You three are not only at the dangerous, or susceptible age but in a precarious situation. The triangle obviously stems from your prolonged illness. There are at least three courses you might take: 1. Do nothing. 2. Divorce. 3. Try discussing the situation with your sister and husband jointly. If you can control your feelings, some decision might be reached. The choice is up to you.

Dear Helen: My mother is a man-hater and won't permit me to leave the house except to go to work and church. Yet I am 23, entirely capable of taking care of myself, earn a good salary and should be leading a normal life. If it weren't for father, I would leave home. Mother takes his money (mine too), banks it and does us out stingy allowances. I've been desperately in love since 1959 with a man who is kind, well-to-do and would ask me to marry him if it weren't for my mother. She reads my mail, so please print this and your answer. —Hopeless

Dear Hopeless: Show some spunk. Your mother acts as she does because you and your father let her get away with it. Think over carefully precisely what you want to say to her; rehearse before a mirror. Speak with conviction knowing right is on your side. Tell her you intend to lead your own life. Give yourself a chance to really accomplish something, then you'll be able to help your father. But, since you love him, let him know your decision. Best see him at his office after you've spoken to your mother. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Mother Complex."

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A DEAD ENDING

By Judson Phillips

I found myself staring at his bow tie. It was one of those dime-store affairs that come already tied.

Matthew Higby was just a name to me on that balmy June afternoon when I first met him in the air-conditioned bar at the New York A. C. He was a name on a piece of paper with a few puzzling facts about him appended. The facts were puzzling because they were so vague and incomplete. Ordinarily when Jacob Kramer gives you a dossier on a man you can recognize him the instant he walks into the room crowded with strangers. Not so in the case of Matthew Higby.

"Fifty-six years old," the paper said. "Vigorously, indecently healthy. . . . Filthy rich. . . . Oil, he says. . . . Never married. . . . Merchant Marine in World War II. . . . Murmansk run—torpedoed and fought in the Norwegian underground. . . . Retired except for his own stock market. . . . I handled some odds and ends for him long, long ago. . . . Gen. Lee Hooper, a jerk of the first water, described Higby as a 'known murderer' at a meeting of the New York State Racing Commission. . . . Higby wants to bring an action for slander. . . . See what you think, J.K."

I am Jake Kramer's junior partner. Jacob Kramer will someday be remembered as one of the great criminal lawyers of our time along with Darrow, Fallon, Leibowitz and their kind.

There had been a message for me at the reception desk in the main lobby of the Club. If Mr. Higby was not there to greet me I was to go to the bar and have myself a drink.

The table reserved for Higby was in an isolated corner of the busy bar. The captain treated me like royalty. Higby was liked, or, at any rate, tipped well. I ordered a bourbon on the rocks and sat back to wait for our client.

"Mr. Cornelius Ryan?"

He had come up behind me. His smile was wide and generous over a granite square jaw.

"I'm Matt Higby." He held out his hand. His grip was not a bone crusher, but I had the feeling he could crush bones if he chose.

"So sorry not to meet you downstairs," Higby said, taking the chair across the table from me. "I have a standing handball date with the club pro. It took him a little longer than average to mop up with me. The usual," he said to the waiter who appeared promptly at his elbow. His voice was pleasant, quiet, yet it suggested strength and enormous vitality. He was unquestionably a New Yorker. I knew a half-a-dozen Brooklyn Irishmen who sounded just like him.

His hair was dark, a distinguished sprinkling of gray at his temples. He wore it cut short, and he looked like a man who went to his barber at least once a week.

I found myself staring at his bow tie. It was one of those dime-store affairs that come already tied and clip onto your collar button. It was wildly out of key with his obviously custom-tailored pale gray tropical worsted suit.

His bright blue eyes had a twinkle in them. "You're wondering about my tie," he said.

Watch yourself, Ryan, I told myself. This guy is also a mind reader.

"House rule here you must wear a necktie in the public rooms. Some of the good restaurants have the same rule. I never wear a tie if I can help it, but I carry this job around in my pocket to cover contingencies. I keep hoping the house committee will decide it looks so awful they'll make an exception of me."

The waiter brought him what I took to be a Bloody Mary. It looked good and I said something about wishing I'd thought of having one myself.

"Just plain tomato juice, Corny," he said. "I never drink. They do call you Corny? All the Corneliuses I ever knew were called Corny."

"They call me Corny," I said. "Mind if I do? And I'm Matt to my friends."

"Okay, Matt."

His attempt to be easy and friendly seemed forced.

"How much do you know about me, Corny?" he asked.

I played it straight. I handed him a slip of paper on which Jake had scribbled his notes.

"So I'm a 'nice guy,'" he said. He'd picked out the part that pleased him. "Well, what do you think?"

"I think I need to know a lot more than that paper tells me before I can think anything," I said.

"Good boy! I like a man who doesn't say 'yes' just to please a customer. I guess the word is 'client,' isn't it?"

"There are some simple facts about an action for slander, Matt," I said. "First you have to prove it is a lie. Then you have to prove that the lie has done you damage—economically, socially, somehow. You can be slandered but if nobody believes the slander you can't prove damage. If General Hooper has slandered you, I'd say you had a good chance of success. He's a man with a reputation for rigid honesty and integrity, jerk or not. Some people are bound to believe what he says just because he says it."

"He said it — at a public hearing," Higby said.

"Then let's start at the beginning," I said. "Have you ever murdered anyone?" I said half jokingly.

"To my surprise he didn't answer at once. He didn't laugh it off. 'Fellow I know down on the Street,' he said. 'Made his money in Venezuela on his property. Local radicals didn't want American capital taking over. They tried sabotage. My friend had guards around his property, which he'd bought all nice and legal. The guards killed some of the radicals. Would you call my friend a murderer?'"

"If you want to split hairs," "Jake didn't tell you how I really made my money?"

"You saw the notes."

"I ran rum," he said. "I was a bootlegger — whatever you want to call it — right up to the day of repeal. People got killed in that business, Corny — people on my side and people on the side against me. I, personally, never killed anyone. I never pulled the trigger on anyone."

"Bootlegging was against the law," I said frowning.

"Know who my customers were?" he asked. He waved around the crowded bar. "These guys, but their counterparts. The best people in town. And specifically, you know who one of my best customers was?"

"Who?"

"General Hooper. He was a colonel then — stationed down on Governor's Island. I supplied him and his whole mess for two, three years. The buyers were just as guilty under the law as the sellers, although hardly anyone ever got pinched for buying."

"You sell him some bum stuff?"

"That's not funny, Corny I ran the stuff — from Canada, from ships outside the 12-mile limit. When I say I supplied Hooper, I mean he bought the stuff I ran in. I never met him — haven't to this day. Of course I know him by sight. Big war hero, picture in the papers."

"What's Hooper got against you?" I asked.

"I don't know!" He sounded genuinely bewildered. "Repeal was 30 years ago. I was a kid, 26 years old. I'd made a lot of dough for a kid that age. Most of the fellows in my world went into the rackets after repeal. I played it straight. Investments. I've played the market for 30 years and it's been good to me."

State Rallies to Beat Kansans

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas State rallied for three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning Saturday to eke out a 6-5 baseball victory over Kansas State in a game at Jonesboro.

Two runs were scored on the same number of errors after right-fielder Jim Beville hit to the short-stop with one out and the bases loaded. Third baseman Jim Dawson then doubled, bringing in the winning run.

Ivan Jackson was the winning pitcher and Joe Hoagard absorbed the loss.

John Pierce Resigns as Coach Here

Head Coach John Pierce today submitted his resignation to take a position at Crossell. Mr. Pierce has been either assistant or head coach here for the past 10 years. His letter of resignation follows:

Hope, Arkansas
April 1, 1963

"Mr. James H. Jones
Superintendent of Schools
Hope, Arkansas
Dear Mr. Jones:

"It is with regret that I submit my resignation as Head Football Coach of Hope High School effective July 1, 1963.

"I have accepted a position in the Crossell Public Schools for year 1963-64.

"It has been a pleasure working with Mr. Jones and the school administration. I appreciate the School Board Members and their interest in my behalf.

"The students and teachers have always given their fullest cooperation. I hate to leave a fine group of athletes as I have ever had the privilege of coaching. The Booster Club of Hope has been untiring in their efforts to improve our school facilities and equipment.

"Thinking of the future, a decision had to be made, and I feel that there are greater employment opportunities in the years ahead in Crossell. This is the basis of my decision, which has been a hard one to make, as the people of Hope have been good to me.

Sincerely,
John Pierce, Coach
Hope High School

Few Records Set in U of A Relays Sat.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Only three records were set in the 12th running of the Arkansas Relays Saturday at Fayetteville and one of those was the only most record held by the university.

Kansas State's Pat McNeal clipped 11 seconds off Razorback Tom Oakley's 900 mark of 9:21.4 in the two mile run.

Southern Illinois topped the old sprint medley relay mark with a 3:23.8. The old record, set by Oklahoma State in 1962 was 3:26.1.

The third record was in a new event, the Hop, Step and Jump, won by Larry Lee of the University of Missouri with a mark of 45-8.

In the combined junior college and freshman division, five records fell. A total of 12 schools entered trackmen in the division.

No team trophies are given in the relays.
